2-STROKE RACING OIL

Kawasaki Performance Oils vs. Automobile Oils.

To better understand why you should use Kawasaki Performance Oils, you should first understand the unique characteristics of a motorcycle engine. The main difference, Kawasaki motorcycle engines share the same oil within the crank case and transmission. Transmission gears have a very high sheering force that requires a unique additive system not found in typical automotive engine oil. The majority of motorcycles also have wet clutches which actually begin to slip if subjected to the friction modifiers used to improve fuel economy in automotive engines.

Remember, Kawasaki Performance Oils have been specifically engineered and factory approved for your vehicle. Consistent use of these products meets or exceeds both warranty and service requirements and will help to extend the life of your Kawasaki.

When in doubt, refer to your owners manual for the recommended viscosity and grade.
